Gallagher Bassett appoints new NSW General Manager

Harry Ellison has joined third party claims administrator Gallagher Bassett as General Manager - New South Wales.

The senior vacancy arose when Paul Easter transferred from NSW to lead GB's South Australian operation this year.

Mr Ellison has more than 30 years' experience in the insurance industry across various classes, including workers' compensation.

Peter Walker, GB's head of business development, said: "We are thrilled to have Harry join the team at GB. Having worked for a raft of insurance organisations, including C E Heath, Heath Workers' Compensation and NRMA, he has a tremendous breadth of industry expertise. Harry will immediately become a member of GB's senior executive team."

Mr Ellison said: "I am very excited to have joined such a great team. GB has developed a significant business in NSW with almost 200 staff now housed in the North Sydney office. The business is incredibly varied, with accounts ranging from public liability and commercial motor fleet to workers' compensation. I look forward to building on the strong platform left by Paul and helping to drive GB's planned further expansion."
